

STEFANO CALLIGARO

Introduction

Stefano Calligaro est né en 1976 à Cividale del Friuli (Italie), il vit et travaille à Cluj-Napoca (Roumanie).

Stefano Calligaro est un artiste italien basé à Cluj-Napoca, Roumanie. Son travail protéiforme emploie une variété de stratégies questionnant avec ironie l'essence de l'art et le rôle de l'artiste dans la société contemporaine.

Sa pratique actuelle inclut des posters, livres, dépliants, cartes postales entre autres pratiques de l'éphémère imprimé et s'engage avec le texte et la poésie (Poetry) comme il l'aime la nommer.

Grâce à une utilisation minimale du langage et à la légèreté de sa pratique, il transforme des mots familiers en « Poetricks » - des pépins verbaux simples qui, malgré leur simplicité, activent notre conscience en invitant le spectateur à entrer dans un nouveau territoire malléable à envisager, explorer et expérimenter.

Introduction

Stefano Calligaro was born 1976 in Cividale del Friuli (Italy), he lives and works in Cluj-Napoca (Romania).

Stefano Calligaro is an Italian visual artist based in Cluj-Napoca, Romania. His multifaceted work employs a variety of strategies that question with irony the essence of art and the role of the artist in contemporary society.

His current artistic production includes posters, books, leaflets and postcards among other ephemeral printed material, and engages with text and poetry - «Poetry», as he likes to call it. Through a minimal use of language and the lightness of his practice, he transforms familiar words into «Poetricks» - straightforward verbal glitches that, despite their simplicity, activate our consciousness inviting the viewer to enter a new malleable territory to envision, explore and experience.

Poetricks and text based Self-portraits

«Poetricks», «Poetrickal-materializations» and text based «Self-portraits» are right now at the center of Stefano's work.

Far from being a simple aesthetic stance, his choice is primarily a resistance tactic to today's rampant Hyper-spectacularization of the art discourse.

It's a personal way of questioning, with irony and anarchic sensibility, the essence of art and the role of the artist in contemporary society.

Poetrickal-materializations

«Poetrickal-materializations» are printed versions of Stefano Calligaro digital Poetricks. They can be postcards, stickers, posters, books, wallpaint installations and anything else that makes Stefano's digital Poetry tangible.

Each materialization is usually made in collaboration with other people including art-publishers, galleries, independent art spaces, collectors, institutions or simple art lovers who are given the task to produce and distribute, without specific instructions, the physical artwork itself.

This participatory aspect of the work not only contributes to demystify the importance of the artist but also allows each Poetrickal-materialization to freely question the essence of art in a society that constantly provides cultural and intellectual models to follow.

Recent «Poetrickal-materializations» include:

- «Poetrick (No.128)» - materialized as Postcard edition of 250 by «Paul and Wendy projects», Toronto, Canada.

- «Poetrick (No.218)» - materialized as Postcard edition of 250 by Emmanuel Hervé, Marseille, France.

- «Poetrick (No.114)», «Poetrick (No.144)», «Poetrick (No.146)», «Poetrick (No.231)», «Poetrick (No.127)» - materialized as Beer mats edition by «Secondroom», Antwerp, Belgium.

- «Poetrick (No.104)» - materialized as Postcard edition of 250 by «And the editions», Vienna, Austria.

- «Poetrick (No.186)» and «Poetrick (No.192)» - materialized as Postcard edition of 50 by «Secondroom», Antwerpen, Belgium.

Stefano Calligaro brings Formula1 to Romania for the 1st time in history and it does so through his omnivore artistic practice, stunning aerodynamics and outstanding cornering abilities. The Bucharest Gp is an initiatory experience, the unique occasion to experience Scuderia Calligaro's unleashed power, and encounter Stefano Calligaro full efficiency configuration all in one place: INVITRO gallery, Bucharest.

Together with a new body of works created especially for this occasion, Stefano will present unmissable "...FOUR LITTLE PIRELLI TYRES", the 128 pages' literary boost system published in May 2019 by Editura Fractalia, and "Cappuccino Calligaro" the 100% Arabica espresso blend roasted by Hot Pipes Roasters x Scuderia Calligaro.

Stefano Calligaro is a visual artist, quasi-poet, racing driver, coffee lover. His work inhabits and subverts the slopes and chicanes of popular culture and art clichés, it's a top-speed racing ring where boundaries between art, literature, reality, fiction, exclusiveness, and mass-produced products overlap and mix exposing the public to Calligaro's exuberant self-mythology, the very system he uses to claim space for the casual fruition and consumption of his art.

The name "Scuderia Calligaro" comes from the highly renewed F1 racing team "Scuderia Ferrari", which is one of Stefano Calligaro's main addictions, along with Coffee and Poetry. "Scuderia Calligaro" is a personal, yet collective platform that invites international and local emerging creators to think and produce a body of diverse, exclusive, and limited items –"CALLECTIBLES" – created to celebrate the exciting World of "Scuderia Calligaro" and Formula1.

How can one, as an artist, resist while continuing to produce work?

How can one work within an art world that they despise, but in which they nonetheless function? Central to Stefano Calligaro's practice, from the start of an idea or gesture to its physical outcome, are the questions of WHY and WHAT one produces as an artist. As Bertolt Brecht puts it in his poem The Doubter, about a man whose basic attitude is one of constant doubting.

According to Calligaro, the difficulty of art lies not in its complexity, but in its irrelevance. The fundamental attitude of his work is the act of questioning itself: questioning art's appearance, its morality, its aesthetics, its functionality, its usefulness.

For Calligaro, answers lie in absurdity. He constantly offers up strategies that (mis)use mediums such as Twitter or Instagram so that 'normal' actions become absurdly exaggerated. Another 'response' is given in his rejection of a certain virtuosity - be it within a medium like painting, writing, or even Photoshop - so as to not fall in love with one's own artistic mastery or craftsmanship. The so-called products that come from Calligaro's hands are the result of 'quick thoughts coming from other quick thoughts transferred quickly on various surfaces.' By doing so, he circumvents the all too finished, polished product.

The entire project presented at Kunstverein Langenhagen, which also includes a publication consisting of e-mail correspondence on the above-mentioned topics between Calligaro and artists Kurt Ryslavý and QS Serafijn, evokes the dynamic between so-called artistic freedom and power relations that is constantly at stake. As with the artist himself, the institution is also faced with questions of what is seen and what is not, what has value - be it symbolic or economic - and who decides. The artist cannot shed this dynamic, and it equally infects the art institution. There is no escaping; the institution is just as entwined with the art world as is the artist.

Calligaro sees the exhibition as a parasite of space and context; the institute is temporarily dominated by the intervention of the artist. This act doesn't stop here, for the exhibition includes more than what can be seen in the space of the Kunstverein: it is the correspondence between the artist and curator; it is in the artist's clothing; in the publication that appears together with this project; it includes the posters on the advertising columns in the streets of Langenhagen; it is the spam sent from the Kunstverein to a number of other art institutions. With this expansive set of actions, the exhibition is more comprehensive and more ambiguous than the visitor might think at first sight. Yet at the same time, through the work it becomes clear that this show, like any other, isn't democratic or completely public. Much of the 'exhibited' is only visible to a few. Calligaro lays bare the tension that a place like the Kunstverein, although public, is not a 'free' or 'autonomous' space, however much one would like to believe.

Calligaro's exhibition is something other than a simple sum of objects that together form a coherent whole. It is consciously incoherent, emanating out from the artist's daily life. "I'd like this show to, yes, 'show' something, but I want it to be me and my incongruent interests and processes all together instead of a clear display of general subjects interesting to others. I like to think of art as something close to what we are and not to what we want to represent."

PETANQFUCK is an arena where players – the artist himself together with other contributors – are called to discuss, debate and confront each other's positions on subjects related to the actual state of the arts and other irrelevant banalities while simultaneously playing PETANQFUCK. Subjects are never over-imposed but vary and deviate according to the directions offered by the dialogue itself. Like balls rolling and knocking, words are pronounced and thrown in the air without univocal purposes and directions. PETANQFUCK is the tension between perplexities and convictions; the friction between what is being offered and our expectations.
